

It's coming. Seven's coverage of the Supercar Auto Bathurst 1000.

- Seven is back at The Mountain across 10-12 October with the biggest ever television coverage of The Great Race.
- 22 hours of live coverage across three massive days.
- Friday Night Live returns in prime-time on 7 Mate from the Mount Panorama Pit Lane.
- Cameras on-track, in-car, in concrete kerbs and walls, in the air, in the pits and flying down the Pit Straight on a wire for coverage of The Great Race.
- Including in-car cameras in the support category races across the weekend, Seven will have a total of 183 cameras at Mount Panorama. 44 cameras on-track. 4 cameras in the pits. 1 helicopter camera. 1 pit lane thermal imaging camera. 1 'fly-cam' covering 450 metres of pit lane. 78 in-car cameras in 13 V8 Supercars, 50 in-car cameras in cars competing in other races plus 4 portable field cameras.
- 36 kilometres of television production cable and fibre, enough to lap the circuit six times. Television production team of 330.
- Coverage being broadcast in over 140 countries across Australia, New Zealand, India, the Middle East, throughout Asia and across Europe and North Africa.

- Mark Beretta, Neil Crompton and Mark Skaife will anchor Seven's coverage along with Aaron Noonan and Chad Neylon in the commentary booth. Mark Larkham and Riana Crehan will follow the drama in the pits, and Edwina Bartholomew from Seven's Sunrise program joins our Bathurst team for the first time to capture the colour and personalities involved in the Supercheap Auto Bathurst 1000.

V8 Supercars on Seven and 7mate: Broadcast Times

The Supercheap Auto Bathurst 1000

Friday, 10 October	1:00pm-4:00pm	Qualifying	Seven
	6.30pm-8.30pm	Friday Night LIVE	7mate
Saturday, 11 October	12:00pm-6.00pm	Top 10 Shootout	Seven
Sunday, 12 October	7:00am-6:00pm	Bathurst 1000	Seven

Times for Friday, Saturday & Sunday are Australian Eastern Daylight Time.

Check local guides for broadcast information.