Seven is set for the Women's Rugby League World Cup across the Screens of Seven

The Seven Network, Australia's most-watched broadcast television platform, will deliver an all-encompassing coverage of the Women's Rugby League World Cup. The Cup commences this week and builds on the extraordinary audience delivery of the Rugby League World Cup across the Screens of Seven.

This year's tournament will be the first time the Women's Rugby League World Cup has been held as a standalone event, with the pool matches to be played in Sydney as triple-headers on 16, 19 and 22 November with the semi-finals to be played as a double-header on 26 November and the final on 2 December.

Commenting, Saul Shtein, Seven's Head of Sport, said: "We are proud to be the network of the Women's Rugby League World Cup. The sport is seeing extraordinary growth and we are pleased to be a partner of the Women's Rugby League World Cup. We are seeing outstanding audiences for our coverage of the Rugby League World Cup across the Screens of Seven, and we look forward to bringing to all Australians the Women's Rugby League World Cup."

Seven's coverage will be hosted by Mel McLaughlin.

Covering the Women's Rugby League World Cup are: David Tapp, Drury Forbes, Bill Harrigan, Mark Geyer, Nathan Cayless, Dene Halatau, Andrew Ryan, Renee Gartner and Allana Ferguson. Michelle Bishop, Josh Massoud and Liam Cox from Seven News also join Seven's Women's Rugby League World Cup team.

In addition to coverage of matches across 7mate and 7Live, Seven will also be broadcasting exclusively only on 7Live four matches in the Women's Rugby League World Cup (England v Papua New Guinea on 16 November, New Zealand v Cook Island and Papua New Guinea v Canada on 19 November and New Zealand v Papua New Guinea on 22 November).
