

SEVEN CONFIRMS COVERAGE OF ALL 12 HOURS IN 2016

(15 October, 2015) THE SEVEN NETWORK will again televise the Liqui-Moly Bathurst 12 Hour from start to finish in 2016.

Seven will show all twelve hours of the race live and free around Australia and live on any connected device, making it one of Australia's longest continuous single-day sporting broadcasts of any major national or international event.

Today's announcement follows a successful debut for the race on the Seven Network in 2015.

Across more than 12 hours of coverage, an average audience of neatly 400,000 tuned in to Seven and 7mate watch the world's best GT stars and cars tackle the famous Mount Panorama circuit.

Seven's Head of Sport Saul Shtein, said: "We are delighted to once again be the broadcast partner of this great event. We have a long and deep connection with Mount Panorama over the past five decades and look forward to working with the event, the teams and the drivers to build on the success of the 12 Hour."

Liqui-Moly Bathurst 12 Hour Event Director John Casey said Seven's commitment to the race was recognition of its status as a major event on the Australian motor racing calendar.

"To have the full 12 hours of the race shown live across the Seven Network is a great result for fans and all our partners who make this event possible," he said.

Further details regarding Seven's coverage, including the commentary team and a breakdown of coverage between Seven's primary channel and 7mate will be confirmed closer to the event date.

Free live streaming via the Liqui-Moly Bathurst 12 Hour website will also ensure international fans won't miss any of the action.
