Amazing Race Duo Named 2014 Skills West Expo Ambassadors

The Amazing Race contestants Sally Yamamoto and Tyson Smith have been named this year's ambassadors for the 2014 Skills West Expo.

The pair have forged solid careers in veterinary science and personal training and attribute their success to training and hard work.

Together the pair studied to become certified personal trainers, completing their Certificates III and IV in Fitness as well as multiple courses in nutrition and exercise.

"Through the training for our careers, we learnt perseverance, team work and to always put 100% into what we do," they said.

"We are humbled and excited to be Ambassadors for the Skills West Expo.

"We believe it is important for people of all ages to attain skills. It leads to a stronger sense of identity and gives you confidence to tackle challenges in life."

The Skills West Expo is Western Australia's leading and largest careers, education, training and employment event and will be held at the Perth Convention Exhibition Centre from 18- 20 September.

The free event will be packed with representatives from a huge range of industries with over 100 employer, industry, education and training exhibitors. From resources, construction, health-care, aviation, hospitality, retail, ICT, defence and more, the expo is a great opportunity for people to see the careers and education opportunities.

Skills West Expo is proudly presented by The West Australian and the State Government of Western Australia.
